The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,4,5,7 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by French pat. '164 to Claude.

Claims 1 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Cramer et al in fig.5.

Claims 1-7,15,16,19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Maxwell. Maxwell shows side bolsters 25.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maxwell in view of Stillman, Jr. Maxwell shows the claimed ladder with the exception of the angled rungs with ridges. Stillman shows a ladder with angled rungs 7 with ridges. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the ladder of Maxwell to comprise angled rungs with ridges, as taught by Stillman, as a safety means.

Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maxwell in view of Cramer et al. Maxwell shows the claimed ladder with the exception of the bolsters being removably secured to each ladder sections. Cramer in fig.5 shows a bolster 12 removably secured to each ladder sections. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the ladder of Maxwell to comprise bolsters, as taught by Cramer, for interconnecting his ladder sections.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maxwell in view of Hutchinson. Maxwell shows the claimed ladder with the exception of the rails being double box beams. Hutchinson shows rails constructed as double box beams. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the ladder of Maxwell to comprise rails constructed as double box beams, as taught by Hutchinson, to enable a strong lightweight construction.

Claims 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maxwell and Hutchinson, as applied to claim 12 above, and further in view of Crozier. Crozier in fig.7 shows a bolster 4 closely overlaying and wrapped around the distal edges of an I-beam. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Maxwell to comprise bolsters closely overlaying and wrapped around the distal edges of the I-beam construction as taught by Hutchinson, as taught by Crozier, to enable a tightly fitting splice.

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Cramer et al. or French pat. '164 to Michel. The examiner takes official notice that threaded fasteners with knobs are conventional fasteners to facilitate hand assembly. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify either Cramer or Michel to comprise conventional knob fasteners in lieu of their bolts to facilitated hand assembly.
